

SAP MARKETING CLOUD

CUSTOMERS FIRST

Transparency due to a central solution for all marketing activities

Personalized and convincing addressing of sales prospects with marketing automation

Increased sales volume due to professional lead management

Many years of SAP experience of the FIS Group

Today, sales prospects and customers use a multitude of different channels for research and product comparisons. The marketing department is responsible for providing the right information at every point of contact. Ideally, marketers are provided with an application containing all customer data. Marketing software enables the use of data for personalized campaigns and detailed analyses.

HOLISTIC MARKETING IN ONE TOOL

SAP Marketing Cloud enables marketing managers to administer all tasks in one system from planning and campaign management to reporting. For this purpose, all customer data is centrally available in the application. As a result, marketing managers get a 360-degree view on customers and sales prospects.

To map the marketing planning, the application clearly divides budgets and campaigns into categories. A campaign calendar gives an additional overview of individual promotions and costs.

Within the solution, users can make detailed segmentations and create individual target groups on the basis of existing customer data. They can then use this data for campaigns and sales prospects can be contacted via different channels. Consent-based marketing is directly organized in the marketing cloud: personalized and GDPR-compliant information will be available in the right place at the right time.

A content studio has been integrated in the marketing cloud in order to simplify the designing of e-mailings, landing pages and forms. E-mailings are not only sent but can also be brought together in automated sending and nurturing chains. Trigger-based promotions are displayed in clear flowcharts that can easily be processed by the users via Drag&Drop. In this way, marketing managers build up a professional marketing automation. A software scoring enriches the customer information and identifies particularly active sales prospects. The created sales opportunities can directly be transferred to the sales and distribution department together with all the information required for successful deals.

In addition, SAP Marketing Cloud contains numerous analysis functions and clear dashboards. Consequently, both individual campaigns and the entire marketing planning can easily be analyzed and monitored.

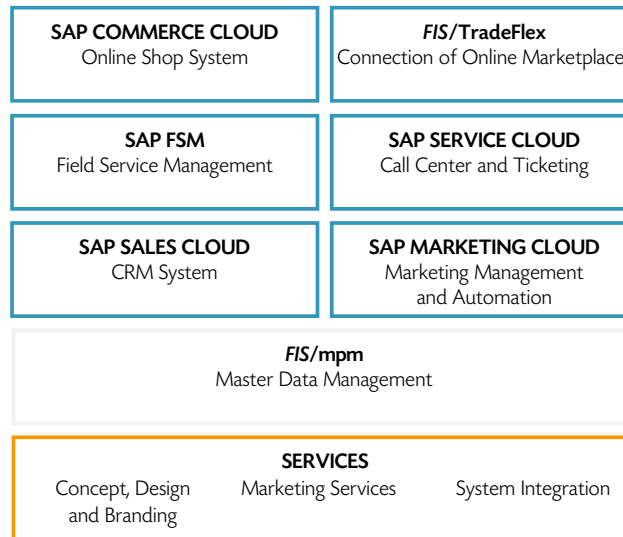

MARKETING AND SALES DEPARTMENTS WORK HAND IN HAND

The sales and marketing departments often use different tools for their daily work. This leads to inconsistent customer data and, consequently, knowledge gaps or wrong information in both departments. Using SAP CX Suite as well as the SAP Marketing Cloud and SAP Sales Cloud applications, companies close the gap between lead generation in the marketing department and the transfer of leads to the sales team.

Marketing managers use SAP Marketing Cloud to execute campaigns in a targeted manner, generate leads and make them available to the SD team in SAP Sales Cloud. The master data of customers and sales prospects can be jointly used and maintained in both applications. As a result, marketing and sales managers always have all information available and share a common understanding of their sales prospects and buyers.
